

Why Northlink?

Northlink offers a very wide variety of accredited training programmes, covering most spectrums of Engineering, Business Studies, Utility Studies, Social Services and more.

There are different modes of delivery of programmes, namely, full-time, part-time, and for some programmes there are correspondence and distance options.

Northlink is flexible to meet the needs of employers. Apart from learnerships, apprenticeships and skills programmes, Northlink also offers the N1-N3 programmes on a modular basis (Competency Based Modular Training).

Northlink has close working relationships with the Sector Education Training Authorities (SETA's).

The College's focus on Customer Satisfaction and Quality systems and practice is reflected in its SABS ISO 9001:2008 certification.

Value for money. The cost of the programmes are affordable. In many instances funding opportunities are sought to subsidise or cover the cost of the education and training delivery.

Quality of staff. Northlink prides itself in its staff development strategy to continually improve the qualifications and skills of its employees. Not only does the College provide subsidised or paid training interventions, but it also pursues workplace exposure for staff to keep them abreast of the latest developments and trends.

The quality of our "products" are acknowledge by achievements in national and international competitions that our staff and students participate in.

In many study areas Northlink has acknowledged Centres of Excellence and are regarded as a benchmark for other Colleges nationally and internationally.

Northlink has more than 60 partnerships and linkages with the related industries and has over the years ploughed back into the communities it serves. Different social responsibility projects and community support serves as evidence ~~of that~~.

Employers can claim back from levies paid to NSF. SARS Tax rebates. Obtain BBEEE points.

Northlink has accreditation with 15 different SETA's across all training delivery fields.
